Tips to Identify and Protect Yourself from Phishing Emails

As internet usage continues to grow exponentially across the globe, so does the occurrence of cyber-attacks. Phishing attacks, in particular, have become one of the greatest threats to cybersecurity in the Digital Age, and these attacks have grown substantially more complex and sophisticated over time. A recent study by The Radicati Group, Inc. shows that there were nearly 4 billion email users during 2018, and that number is currently on an upward trend. This leaves a huge area of opportunity for cyber-criminals. Knowledge is the best defense we have against such attacks, and it is important that we are well-equipped to identify these phishing emails before we fall prey to their scheme. Here are some tips to identify and protect yourself from these phishing attempts.

Look closely at the display name

Scammers are getting more strategic about how they encourage users to click open their emails. They often use commonly-recognized and trusted brand names to make the email appear to be legitimate. If the Display name looks familiar, hover over to see what email address it is coming from. If you are still not sure, compare that email address to the email address in a previous email you may have received from the brand.

Scammers are getting trickier with their display names and email addresses. They will often apply one minor change to the company's name or email that they assume you will overlook. This includes changing .com to .co or .net or making small changes in the spelling.

You could also take it a step further and do a quick Google search to see what comes up for the email address or domain.

DO NOT click any links

If an email looks suspicious, whatever you do, DO NOT click any of the links. You can hover over the link in the body of the email and you can do a quick Google search for that link address in a separate window if you are curious. Do not follow any links in a suspicious email. Many phishing attacks happen as a result of malware installed after following a link. You can avoid this unfortunate result by simply not clicking any of the links.

Never give personal information over email

A legitimate company will never ask you to send over your personal details via email. Attackers, however, may also ask you to click a link to enter your information. If the email is asking you to follow a link to submit personal details, call the company first to verify.

Only open attachments you were planning to receive

Never open any email attachments that you were not planning to receive. Opening a malicious attachment can install malware on your computer and can turn into a huge mess. The best way to avoid this is by not opening attachments until you confirm the email is legitimate.

The complexity of phishing scams today can be very unnerving. However, if you follow these basic guidelines, you can avoid falling prey to a phishing attack. If you ever receive a suspicious email appearing to come from Smart Link Solutions, please do not hesitate to call us at (248) 684-0500 to confirm.

How to Write an Effective Privacy Policy for Your Website

The rise of the internet, and rapid advancements in technology, continue to raise concerns surrounding privacy online. In an effort to address these concerns, lawmakers are continually working to set guidelines for company's operating on the internet. One way you can ensure that you are doing your part, is by linking your company's privacy policy on your website. Your privacy policy is a disclosure that protects not only the consumer, but your company as well. There are very specific areas you will want to cover in this privacy policy in order for it to be effective.

Type of information being collected

Clearly state the type of information that is being collected on your website. This may include: email addresses, names, IP addresses, home address, phone number, etc. This gives visitors the opportunity to decide whether or not they want to continue on your website.

How you use this information

What is your purpose for collecting this information? How do you plan to use it? Is it relevant to the activity taking place on your website? For example, if you are using the information collected to contact the user regarding a product or service, make that clear.

It is also important to state whether or not others outside of your company will have access to this information.

How do you collect this information?

Tell visitors exactly how this information is being collected. You may be collecting their information via: cookies, signup forms, placing orders. After reading this section, users should have a clear idea on how their information was acquired by your company.

How is the data protected?

Do you have any safeguards in place to protect the information you have collected? How long do you store this data? Do you have an SSL certificate? If your website is not designed to store and protect confidential information, state this as well.

Accessing collected data

Discuss the various ways consumers can view and/or update the information you have collected.

Ensuring the privacy policy is followed

Provide contact information for visitors who wish to talk to someone if they feel this privacy policy is not being followed.

When preparing your privacy policy, you will want to design it according to your unique business needs. You may find that additional clauses are necessary for your company website. If you need assistance with adding a Privacy Policy to your website, contact the experts at Smart Link Solutions today!

OSHA Guidelines for Safety Signage to Keep in Mind for Your Business

Safety in the workplace should always be a priority no matter what the occupation. In addition to proper employee trainings, you should also utilize the necessary safety signage. This form of visual communication can save lives and reduce costs associated with workplace incidents. Here are a few OSHA guidelines for safety signage to keep in mind for your business.

Select the proper classification for your sign

OSHA has outlined several classifications for safety signs: Caution, Warning, Danger, and Safety Instructions.

OSHA states, "Caution signs shall be used only to warn against potential hazards or to caution against unsafe practices." Caution signs indicate that the necessary precautions should be taken to protect from a possible hazard.

Warning signs fall somewhere in between "Caution" and "Danger." The word "Warning" is accompanied by the appropriate safety message. This signage is used when there is a hazard present that could result in death or serious injury. It, however, is not severe enough to require the danger sign.

Danger signs indicate an immediate danger in the area; this warns of very specific dangers.

Follow the required design guidelines

There are very specific guidelines for design that must be followed per OSHA's regulations.

Caution signs must have a yellow background, and the panel must be black with yellow lettering. The word "Caution" must be present. Any wording placed on the yellow background must be printed in black.

Danger signs must use the colors red, black, and white and include the word "Danger."

When it comes to Safety Instruction signs, OSHA says, "The standard color of the background shall be white; and the panel, green with white letters. Any letters used against the white background shall be black. The colors shall be those of opaque glossy samples as specified in Table 1 of ANSI Z53.1-1967 or in Table 1 of ANSI Z535.1-2006(R2011)"

Place in the appropriate areas

Signs should be placed in the area where the hazard or risk is present. It should be placed in clear view for employees to reference.

If you are looking for long-lasting safety signs and caution plates for your business, contact Detroit Name Plate Etching for your quick quote.

The Ultimate Guide to Reaching Your Goals as a New Mom

Becoming a Mom is a life-changing event that can be just as rewarding as it is tiring. With this new responsibility, it can be easy to neglect your self-care and set aside your personal goals to focus on your new bundle of joy. However, while you're monitoring those milestones for your little one, you should also be acknowledging milestones for yourself. This means moving forward with your goals and living a life that you are excited to wake up to each day. Sounds impossible? Well, continue reading for your guide to reaching your goals as a new mom.

Make Healing a Priority

To avoid burnout and find joy in motherhood it is important that you care for yourself better than you ever have before. Our bodies go through a lot of changes following childbirth. It is important that you make healing a priority so that you can perform at optimal levels despite these changes.

Try sleeping when the baby sleeps so that you are not overly exhausted. Outsource certain tasks like cleaning and grocery shopping to free up some of your time. Consider using an adjustable belly band like the Cinch Tummy Wrap™ to help support and tone your tummy muscles following childbirth. You should also incorporate light exercise into your routine - even a simple walk around the house or through the neighborhood with your precious baby.

Write Down Your Goals

Putting your goals on paper will not only increase your motivation but will also help you to focus on achieving these objectives. When things start to get a little crazy, you can always keep sight of your target when you have it written out. Having your goals written down also helps you to keep track of your personal milestones.

Reward Yourself

Once you have an outline of your goals, it is important to reward yourself when you reach certain milestones. Using an app such as Jarous, will allow you to celebrate the successful completion of each activity by filling your jar with a set amount of money. Jarous has the added bonus of allowing you to contribute your earnings to local causes. You can choose to reward yourself in whichever way feels best for you; the important thing is that you actually incentivize yourself for your accomplishments.

No matter where you're at in your motherhood journey, it is not too late to make wellness a priority and get on track to reach your goals. Focus on healing yourself, get your goals down on paper, and reward yourself for making progress along the way. To give back to the community while rewarding yourself, join the Jarous movement today - "Don't give change, make change."

Inspired by popular Netflix series, Tidying Up With Marie Kondo, many people have been turning to the KonMari Method™ to declutter their lives. While the concept of getting rid of anything that doesn't bring you joy may seem simple, applying it to spaces designated for storage —such as your garage— can be quite a challenge. However, with the right tools and resources, you can easily experience the freedom of a clutter-free garage in no time. Here is How to 'Marie Kondo' Your Garage in 3 Easy Steps.

Empty the garage

Pulling everything out of the garage will make it easier to go through and determine whether it is worth keeping. Anything deemed trash can go straight to the can. Anything that “brings you joy,” or is of use to you, should be set aside to later be returned to the garage.

Use boxes and shelves to organize

Grab a few moving boxes to label and store smaller objects to be kept in the garage. Add a few shelves to place objects in a decorative, and easy-to-find, way. Organizing things according to their function will be a great way to locate these items when needed.

Invest in a storage unit

For some of those larger items, such as seasonal outdoor equipment, rent a storage unit to store those items until you are ready to use them. This will free up a ton of space in your garage!

Here at Right Move Storage, we understand that organizing small spaces can be quite a task. That is why we are here to help meet your storage needs without the hassle. Contact us today to learn more about the best storage options for you.

Reputation Management

Show your customers that you care

Your success lies in your reputation

Reputation is just as important in your business as it is in your personal life. With the continued increase in internet usage across the globe, your online reputation is now more important than ever. The internet is a powerful tool that allows businesses to expand their reach on a much larger scale. Customers typically search for a business based on location and the product or service needed. They are searching for both accurate and credible information. Not only do reviews give your local rankings a boost, but they also persuade potential customers to do business with you (or not).

Why you should monitor your online reputation

- Lack of Reviews – Reviews establish customer satisfaction and credibility of the business. Businesses are often overlooked when little or no credibility can be established.
- Up-To-Date Reviews – Congratulations! Your business received a review... four years ago. Businesses change owners, team members, policies, services, products, etc. It is important to show that your business is providing the same great service.

- Negative Reviews – Rarely do businesses make everyone happy. Typically, it is the angry customers that carry their frustration over to review boards. These negative reviews can impact prospective customers' decisions on whether or not to do business with you. It is important to address these reviews.
- Unanswered Reviews – When a review is left unanswered, positive or negative, you are telling your customers that you aren't valuing their thoughts or concerns. You are also telling potential customers that you don't acknowledge your current customers' needs.

Our Reputation Management Services:

Maintenance

- Aggregate your reviews daily from 100+ sites.
- Generate new reviews from your clients via SMS, email campaigns and check-ins.
- Integration of 300 platforms to automatically collect new reviews.
- Receive immediate email or SMS alerts for all new reviews.

Marketing

- Auto post best reviews (including reviews from top sites) on your website, Facebook timeline and Twitter Feed.
- Show up on Google search engine with Five Stars.
- Custom SEO optimized review site.
- Happy clients review you on top sites like Google, Yelp and Facebook.
- Distribute best reviews to 50+ partner sites with 140m unique users.
- Create campaigns to get more reviews.

Monitoring

- We will work with client to respond to customer feedback.
- Reviews are aggregated every 24 hours to provide quick feedback.
- Identify and respond to all negative reviews with an approved response from the client.
- Track growth in reviews, ratings, and visitors.

Hi {insert name},

Please see the following information regarding ADA Compliance for your website.

The Americans with Disabilities Act is a federal law that requires all public accommodations to be accessible for individuals with disabilities. While these regulations are commonly acknowledged in commercial facilities such as restaurants, malls, and movie theaters, it can be easily overlooked in the digital world.

With over 4 billion internet users across the globe and billions of online searches per day, the world wide web is one of the most widely used services today. The internet has undoubtedly transformed the way companies do business. Unfortunately, for individuals with disabilities (over 61 million adults in the U.S. alone), the internet can be difficult to navigate. For this reason, the ADA now requires all government websites to meet certain accessibility requirements. However, even if you are not operating a government website, it is equally important that you maintain an ADA- compliant website.

Avoid Discrimination Lawsuits

A few examples of disabilities as outlined by the ADA are: hearing and/or visual impairments, learning disabilities, and wheelchair confinement. If a consumer finds that your website is not accessible due to their disability, they could file a complaint with the U.S Department of Justice which could result in a lawsuit. Private lawsuits can also be brought against you. In the first six months of 2019, approximately 5500 lawsuits were filed for ADA Violations.

With an ADA-compliant website you can avoid excessive legal costs and potential damage to your company's reputation.

Grow Your Audience by Reaching More Users

An ADA-compliant website will allow you to reach more consumers as it will now be accessible to those with disabilities. You leave tons of money on the table by making your website inaccessible to potential customers. There may be a consumer interested in your products and services, but if they cannot navigate your website, they may just take their business elsewhere.

Not only will better website usability make it easier to communicate with your audience, it also shows that you value their business.

Boost SEO

Websites that follow the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines generate an overall better user experience which can have a positive influence on search engine rankings. Additionally, extra steps such as adding closed captioning to your videos, captions to your images, modifying font color and size can further complement your SEO efforts.

Smart Link Solutions is committed to serving our clients in the best way possible and we understand the impact ADA-compliance can have on your bottom line. If you are interested in an ADA-compliant website for your business, please respond at your earliest convenience by completing this form.

Regards,

Smart Link Solutions
